N.F. Priestly Writes Re U. F. A.

In the heat and stress of this political campaign the United Farmers of Alberta find themselves at the centre of the battle. It is no accident that the only real opposition which the Stewart Government is meeting is being put forward by the U. F. A. The division of political forces in this province into two camps Liberal and Conservative has always been more or less artificial. There never was any essential or fundamental difference between the two.

This is now proven by the fact that there are many ridings where no Conservative candidate will seek the suffrage of the people.

Outside the cities where machine politics are always strongest, there is found but a mere handful of men ready and willing to carry the banner of the Conservative opposition. This is not, as our opponents assert, evidence of satisfaction with the work of the Liberal administration of the past sixteen years, witness on the contrary the large number of independent candidates in the field and entrance into the political arena of the U. F. A. The fact is that an intelligent public is beginning to discern, or has already discerned, that in spirit and policy the two old parties are largely one.

The people are sick of the old game, "this is your turn, the next is mine" and the U. F. A. movement is the expression of their protest.

During the later stages of the war there was much talk from platform and pulpit, in press and magazine, and on every street corner where men gathered, of "a new day," a time when "things will be different."

The Farmer is the Canadian embodiment of this ideal. It is the people in action. There are those who prefer to see things remain as they were, or at least want to see a little progress along so called safe and sane lines directed by themselves, and we have been and still are in danger of settling back into the same old rut as before the war. But the people of the country, its pioneers, its workers, those who have blazed its bush trails, who have made a garden out of the bald prairie, who have grubbed roots and cut down trees who have hung onto the handles of a breaking plow and plodded weary dusty miles after the harrow and seeder, those who have sweated from dawn to dusk gathering in the fruits of the field, who have worried over the weather and the markets, who have feared frost and hail and drought, who have suffered loss and endured poverty to build a home and create a nation in this new land; these people are speaking through the U. F. A. and their voice will be heard.

It is argued that this is a class cry, that it takes no account of the work done by other men in the professions, in commerce and industry. This we deny. Every clear thinking, honest minded man or woman must realize that this is an agricultural country and that our welfare whether we live in the city, town, village or rural community is bound up with that of the primary producer, the tiller of the soil. Why fear then, the Farmers' movement? The only people who have cause to fear it are those whose power to make an easy living, to carry on their evil practices, will be curtailed by its success.

The Farmers' movement is not a new political party it is a new spirit, a determination of the people to govern themselves. It is sweeping Canada. It is bound to win. Look at Medicine Hat! One of the strongest personalities in southern Alberta absolutely snowed under by 9764 votes. Have not the people spoken? The movement is one people govern themselves, to have whether in provincial or federal matters. It is the determination of the "a government of the people, for the people, by the people. Are you with us or are you a stand-patter: satisfied with things as they are? If you have a vision of a better day, if you are looking forward to a better Canada, if you have any faith in the great mass of your fellows vote for the Farmers' movement by casting your ballot on the 18th for J. Russell Love.

J. RUSSELL LOVE

U. F. A. and U. F. W. A. Candidate for Wainwright Constituency.

To the Electors of Wainwright Constituency.

Ladies and Gentlemen:

Having been honored by being chosen as the U. F. A., and U. F. W. A. candidate for the coming election in the Wainwright Constituency, I solicit your loyal and earnest support in the present campaign. I appeal to the Merchants and Professional men as well as to the farmers, because the interests of one is the interests of the other. I believe the electors have the right to recall their representative if he proves disloyal to the cause for which he is elected. I believe the Farmer's Platform upon which I stand is founded upon sane and logical principles, and is designed for the general welfare and progress of all classes of people. If elected I may make mistakes: No man is perfect but I will do my very best to serve faithfully and wisely the interests of the people whom I should be called upon to represent.

Yours truly,
J. R. Love

Questions Asked by Electors:

- (1) "Why all the wild haste on the part of the Gov't in getting before the people? Why not give the people a chance to consider the situation?"
Ans. There is a law in nature which says "The old, order changeth and giveth place to new."
- (2) Why does the Stewart Gov't plead for the support of the cities on the cry "help us from the farmers menace which will lead us to chaos?"
Ans. Its last hour.
- (3) Why does the gov't call itself a farmers government in all but name?
Ans. Because it is customary for Liberals to take a course in farming now-a-days before entering the Legislature.
- (4) Why is Hon. J. R. Boyle trying to ride two horses at the same time?
Ans. Because he is being tossed on the horns of a dilemma.
- (5) How can Mrs. McLung and Mr. Boyle stand on the same platform?
Ans. Miracles haven't ceased.
- (6) Why did Premier Stewart come to the Wainwright constituency?
Ans. Because he is interested in local improvements and good roads.
- (7) What are all the teams working on the government road for?
Ans. The old scheme of winning votes at the public's expense.

Political Aspect by H. S. Spencer

To the Electors of Wainwright Constituency

Ladies and Gentlemen:

I have been asked to write something on the political aspect as we find it in Alberta at the present time. To one who has been in close touch with the Farmers' Organization for some time, the results obtained in the political field during the past two years seem nothing but natural consequences in the course of progress. A continuous, slow but steady educational propaganda in Saskatchewan resulted in a great victory for Gould over Motherwell, much to the surprise of everybody but the workers in the movement.

The first evidences of this new political germ of independence appeared in Alberta when a vacancy occurred in the Cochrane Provincial Constituency. The farmers realizing the power of their vote and wishing a more democratic representation in parliament placed a man in the field as their representative instead of accepting a machine selected one.

The present administration, though calling itself a Farmers Government at that time showed a colossal ignorance of the independent spirit of the rural population by deciding to kill this germ before it has fully matured. Therefore not only were all the usual weapons of political warfare brought into operation against this supposed insurgent constituency, but all the members but one of the Cabinet, together with a host of their followers, made a crusade to Cochrane with high hopes of a complete victory.

How hard they worked the more determined were the latter to hold to their rights, with the result the government had to acknowledge defeat.

When one realizes the vast amount of patronage and political funds that were used against the independent movement of the farmers, and also realizes that the farmers won with a cash outlay of some $405.00 once is forcibly reminded of the power of the vote over money when true co-operation is exercised and men rise above the bribe.

The next trial of strength came in Medicine Hat when a most popular man of strong personality was chosen to carry the Government standard. Again we saw the lack of knowledge by those in power of the wish and the will of the people. The old line government forces seemed to have unlimited funds and influential speakers, but the people battling against the walls of Verdun. They gained 20 votes, but lost prestige and returned home sadder and wiser men.

We are now in the throes of a Provincial General election forced suddenly on the country by one in power in the hope that the people would be caught napping and victory would be theirs. However the men and women of the Province remember Cochrane and realize that what is designated by some as a Farmers government is nothing more or less than a political machine. No matter what may be the personal qualifications of the government nominee, it is not a matter of personality but principle with the people and they demand a co-operative business administration free from party lines and patronage.

The movement is not local, but Dominion wide. It is a new spirit of Canadianism by which the people are struggling for a pure and just administration in the affairs of the government as they cherish in private life.

Over forty Rural Provincial Ridings have decided to take action and endeavor to bring about a new and better day.

Every city has its independents, showing the general breaking away from the old party system. Alberta is to the front in her organization and she should therefore reap a greater success in the coming election.

Who and What Are We?

Is there such a person as a Canadian?

The Government of Canada says there is not. According to the official records there is not one Canadian among the eight or nine million inhabitants of this Dominion. Neither the Premier of Canada, nor any one of the Premiers of the nine Provinces, is a Canadian. They may have been born in Canada, and their parents and grandparents before them, but that makes no difference—they are not Canadians. The Government of Canada says so, and has instructed its army of census officials to record the amazing fact.

Readers of the above may be skeptical of the truth of these assertions, but a little quiet inquiry and investigation on their part will soon establish the correctness of the statements made.

Commencing on June 1st the work of taking the decennial census of Canada was begun and enumerators began visiting the homes of the Dominion armed with official forms and pencil in hand asking questions of all and sundry as to their names, age, place of birth, nationality, etc. Coming to the question of nationality, a man or woman born in Canada, very naturally reply that they are Canadians. But Mr. Census-taker retorts that they are not. They may be anything else, but they are not Canadians. When these patriotic sons or daughters of Canada insist they are Canadians, first, last and all the time, and nothing else, the faithful servant of the Government of Canada is forced to explain to them that there are no Canadians; the Government does not recognize them at all in the official tabulation of the nationality of the residents of the Dominion.

Mr. Census-taker will then ask: "Where was your father born?" "In Canada," comes the reply. "Where was your mother born?" Again the answer is, "In Canada." "Well, they are not Canadians either," is the dictum. And then Mr. Census-taker will explain that Canada is not a nation and, therefore, there can be no Canadian nationality. He may then ask: "Were your grandparents, or possibly your great-grandparents, Irish?" The ordinary Canadian resident may retort: "What has that got to do with it; Ireland is not a nation. It is even less a nation than Canada. Canada enjoys not only full self-government, but it is a member of the League of Nations on a basis of entire equality with all other nations, which Ireland is not."

The logical force of such an answer is, however, entirely lost upon the Government of Canada. Residents of this Dominion may be classified as Irish, or Scotch, or Welsh, or Hottentot, or Chinese, or Turks—anything almost but Canadian, even though it is necessary to go back prior to the days of Jacques Cartier to find out some remote ancestor born outside the boundaries of the Dominion in order to fix some nationality upon native-born Canadians.

This is not a far-fetched description, because the writer has personal knowledge of an instance where a Canadian-born citizen informed the census enumerator that he had no knowledge of any ancestors but those whose place of birth was Canada, and who was, therefore, regarded by the enumerator as "Nationality unknown."

Yet our politicians and statesmen boast of Canada as a nation. In rounded periods and with great eloquence they dwell upon this Dominion's place among the nations, and the prominent part it plays in the councils of the League of Nations. On all sides exhortations are heard of our duty to Canadianize our new settlers from "foreign" lands. The Canadianizing of all people within our bounds is urged as a foremost Canadian duty and responsibility. Yet when the children of these "New Canadians" proudly say, "I am a Canadian," the Government of Canada officially tells them they are mistaken; they are Germans, or Russians, or Poles, or Austrians, or Italians, but they are not Canadians and never can be, nor can their children or children's children ever be throughout the ages yet to come.

Pick up the official census returns for all past decades and see if you can find that there is a Canadian living in Canada.

Is it not high time that this obsolete, antiquated classification of by-gone years be discarded. Has the time not come when a person born in Canada has a right to be classified as a Canadian and not be compelled to accept official designation of some other nationality which he will never accept for himself personally?

What is the sense of preaching Canadianism and seeking to create and develop a Canadian national sentiment, Canadian art, Canadian literature, a true and lasting pride in Canada and Canadian institutions, if for all time the world is to be officially informed through the publications of the Canadian Government that such a person as a Canadian is non-existent, that this Dominion is still an infant colony of little or no importance inhabited for the time being by English, Scotch, Irish, Welsh, American, German, Austrian, Russian and other peoples?

Canada talking of having its own Minister at Washington, sitting in the councils of the League of Nations, taking its full part in the Great World War, and yet denying to its own native-born sons and daughters the right to the name Canadian presents an anomaly that should be removed. The Ottawa Government had better bestir itself and place itself and the official records of this Dominion in line with real Canadian sentiment and aspirations.

"Your Teeth"

TOOTHACHE

Copyright, 1921, by Rea Proctor McGee.

One of the most peculiar things about toothache is that in three out of four cases the tooth that seems to ache is innocent.

The teeth seem to act like a large family of children. When one of them raises Cain he blames it on the other.

So don't be surprised—when you go to the dentist and confidently tell him that the tooth upon which your finger is resting is the one that is causing the trouble—to have him make a few tests and tell you that it is another tooth, probably far distant from the one that you suspect.

There are so many different forms of toothache that each person probably has a different experience from anyone else. There are even times when it is very difficult really to say that the pain that is being suffered is a toothache, although almost everyone thinks that there would be no difficulty whatever in recognizing this particular form of pain.

In addition to pain directly about the teeth, an aching tooth can cause pain in the ear, or in the eye, or almost any form of headache, facial neuralgia or pains in the neck or arm—and there have been cases on record in which practically all pain of an aching tooth was felt in the sole of the foot.

The evil result of an aching tooth is not so much the pain inflicted on the patient at the time as it is the harm done to the general system by the absorption of pus from the infected root of the tooth.

It is quite true that not all aching teeth are abscessed, because the slightest exposure of the pulp will result in sharp pain.

But this exposure is bound to result in the death of the pulp, and so will have the following in the train of this pain the certainty of infection, which means absorption. There are other cases in which the pulp is not exposed, but from some form of irritation—such as a tooth being bitten upon too hard, or being exposed unnaturally to extremes of heat and cold, or being ground down for crowns or bridges—the irritation will sometimes cause the pulp to die.

When the pulp dies it immediately begins decomposition.

This causes the formation of gas—which in turn makes very high pressure upon the nerve filaments that supply the pulp—and this pressure is carried back over the main branch of the fifth nerve where it may be relayed to many parts of the body, so that from the reflex pressure at the tip of the root of a tooth you can have pain in almost any part of the body.

This is in addition to the evils and the pains that result from the actual absorption either of pus or of pus products.

An aching tooth is not only uncomfortable, but it is also very dangerous.

Childhood ailments come quickly and means should always be at hand to promptly fight them. Baby's Own Tablets are the ideal home remedy. Concerning them Mrs. Moise Cadotte, Makinik, Que., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets are the best remedy in the world for little ones. My baby suffered terribly from indigestion and vomiting, but the Tablets soon set her right and now she is in perfect health." Wear Your Clothes Longer

Buy Bally Beef and Dodge the Cost of High Living.

Retailers seem to have the best just now of the discussion as to the cost of living.

Butchers state and seem to be able to prove their case that many consumers who are objecting to the high prices of meat, refuse to consider any but the choicest cuts, so that the canny housewife gets the pick of the most desirable meats, though not the most aristocratic joints, and feeds her household at almost pre-war prices.

It is noted by many provisioners that a good deal is coming up for corned beef in cans. The "bally beef" of the soldier, this wholesome and economical meat is selling in large quantities. Perhaps soldiers are lonesome for it! Despite this revived interest in cooked corned beef, it is far as yet from its pre-war sales.

Commenting on published statements of the cost of living, a well-known old country provisioner recently claimed that comparisons of prices were most misleading.

For instance even though sirloin steaks, formerly selling at 30c now fetch 50c, this does not increase the cost of living by 66 per cent. To the person who buys, as the latter is now sold at about pre-war prices. Moreover, adds this high authority, the same applies to many other meats.

Talk clothing for example, even if a suit costs 30 per cent. more, this does not increase the necessary expenditure 50 per cent. of one who is satisfied to wear his clothes longer.

In other words, at the present time, it is possible to live on much lower costs than the published figures of comparative prices would indicate. So that "Bally Beef" wear your old clothes and beat the cost of high living.

When It Is "Too Warm To Eat"

BY LORETO C. LYNCH
An Acknowledged Expert in All Matters Pertaining to Household Management.

Many physicians will tell you that patients who have gone along fairly well all winter complain of feeling rundown in the fall of the year after a summer that has, perhaps, even included several weeks' vacation.

"It's too warm to eat," remarked a mother to me one warm day last summer. "Youngsters eat scarcely anything for breakfast and care for very little the rest of the day. They always feel so rundown after a warm spell I'm just glad to see the cool days come on again, for the kiddies always fatten up during the cool days and feel so much better."

It must be admitted that we desire less food in hot weather than we do in cool weather. But the processes of life go on just the same in summer as they do in winter. Children have need of the food that makes for growth and development and adults have need for food which shall repair the tissues worn out by busy living—breathing, or by the more strenuous job of bathing in the ocean, or playing tennis, or working in the office a little more strenuously because "so many are off on vacation."

It is, therefore, up to the mother of the family who has the welfare of her family at heart to see to it that the members of the family get nourishing meals at regular intervals in summer just as in winter. True, the quantity of food served may be reduced. The type of food, too, may be altered somewhat. For instance, a dish of fresh sugared peaches or pineapple or berries is a better choice for dessert on a torrid day than the mince pie of Christmas time.

Again, it must be remembered that fat in some form is necessary in the diet. Even in the tropics, where a low diet of rice is used, fat, if only a little, in some form has to be added in order to maintain health.

Mutton stew, with its generous fat, is not an appropriate dish for a warm day's midday meal. A salad made of tuna fish and salmon, combined with a hot dressing, or the more leaves of lettuce, would be a better choice. If the fish seems dry, serve a little mayonnaise with it. Mayonnaise is fat in a readily digested form.

A salad, to be at its best, should be served ice cold. A near cold and warm salad is often pushed aside by a hot, jagged-out worker when the ice cold one would, perhaps, be promptly eaten.

Another hint to those who foolishly give up eating or practically do so during the summer is—have hot food at least once a day, even in summer. Warm food has the effect of stimulating the stomach and making it ready for the foods that follow. In other words, warm food assists in the digestion of other foods.

In this respect I was able to follow up a little boy last summer who was losing flesh too rapidly because he did not care to eat the food set before him. His mother served him with presentable food, but because of the great heat she served everything cold. After she was persuaded to give him a small cup of hot consommé before luncheon, it was remarkable to see how willingly the little fellow ate the rest of the food that he did not seem to care for before.

Business girls who do not think enough along health lines are apt to substitute the ice cream soda as soon as the days grow warm for the warm, nourishing little luncheon they chose during the colder days. If you must have ice or an ice, take it at the end of the meal, even if that meal consists of but a couple of bread and butter sandwiches.

Meals need not be elaborate nor take hours to prepare. But don't fall into the error of giving up eating just because warm weather has come in. Cut down on the fats, such as butter, oil, fat of meat, cream, which give heat, but don't cut them out.

Why Should the United Farmers of Alberta Oppose the Stewart Government?

Premier Stewart is one of the best farmers in the Province.

The Provincial Government has enacted more legislation in the interests of the farmers than any other government in Canada.

The platform of the U. F. A. is almost identically the platform of the Stewart Government.

All classes and sections have received the utmost consideration at all times from Premier Stewart and his cabinet.

The government has been progressive and businesslike.

Critical times are ahead, and the government is prepared to cope with these problems in an experienced and careful manner.

Why, Then, Should Premier Stewart Be Opposed?

Remember what Hon. T. A. Crerar, national leader of the organized farmers, had to say when he addressed the U. F. A. convention in Edmonton, January 20th, 1921, as reported in the press.

"Mr. Crerar pointed out that the business of government, he cared not whether it was a Municipality, a province, or in the wider federal field, was a business that should engage the attention of every honest citizen, no matter what his calling or occupation might be, and consequently, that being the case, he for one was willing to take common ground with the other man, whatever his profession might be, so long as he believed in policies that he, the speaker, believed in, and who was willing to work with him for those ends."

"That does not mean that the position of your organization, or of any farmers' organizations is challenged," said Mr. Crerar. "It would be a thousand pities if we were to do anything in Canada today that would destroy the integrity and effectiveness of the farmers' organization. Your U. F. A., as your president has pointed out on many occasions, must continue its existence and life as a farmers' organization, built up as such, but let me say this—when you get into the wider field where you are dealing with matters of vital importance to all the people of the country, do not refuse the support and assistance of your motive is to seek power alone for the sake of power. You will fail in your final purpose if the man who is willing to work with you toward government merely for the sake of having it."

CRITICAL TIMES IN THE ERA OF RE-ESTABLISHMENT ARE STILL AHEAD—THE WORDS OF HON. MR. CRRERAR CARRY A NOTE OF GRAVE WARNING—THE STEWART GOV'T HAS AN UNCHALLENGED RECORD OF SPLENDID PUBLIC SERVICE. WHY NOT STAND TOGETHER AND WORK TOGETHER?

Premier Stewart Tries to Rally Forces in Wainwright Const.

Monday morning Premier Stewart arrived in Irma to assist his candidate Major Harry Strachan in his campaign in the Wainwright constituency. A large crowd assembled in the Co-op Hall and listened to an address by Major Strachan. Afterwards the opposition was asked to make any remarks.

Mr. C. T. Hill on behalf of the U. F. A., after complimenting the Premier on his excellent personal record as premier, made several very strong criticisms in regard to his experiences as a councillor in his endeavor to receive consideration from the different departments in regards to roads, hospital, telephone exchange, drainage etc.

The Premier in his address replied to this criticism stating that in most cases he was not familiar with the complaint.

In the evening a large rally was held at Wainwright. Major Strachan was the first speaker and Major Strachan appealed for support on his plea of his being a business proposition with the electors.

Mrs. Hill, a prominent Edmonton Liberal worker, followed with an earnest plea for the support of the ladies. She also attempted to give considerable criticism to the U. F. A. movement and independent platform. After Mrs. Hill spoke, the opposition was given a chance to address the meeting.

Mr. J. R. Love, U. F. A. candidate took the platform and drew the Premier's attention to several grievances which the electors of the constituency have against the Stewart administration. Mr. Love also made some telling points on the natural resources question and stated that the farmers should share in the royalty to at least one sixteenth as has been advocated. Mr. Love received very hearty support from his hearers.

The Premier after a very hearty reception endeavored to give a good account of his stewardship head of the administration especially for the last four years and made a very strong appeal for support at the election Monday.

The popularity of the U. F. A. cause and candidate was very apparent from the good reception given.

CHAPTER I.

Exit Mr. Stanley G. Fulton.

There was a thoughtful frown on the face of the man who is the possessor of twenty million dollars. He was a tall, spare man, with a fringe of reddish-brown hair, encircling a bald spot. His blue eyes, fixed just now in a steady gaze upon a row of ponderous law books across the room, were friendly and benevolent in direct contradiction to the bulldog, never-let-go fighting qualities of the square jaw below the firm, rather thin lips.

The lawyer, a youthfully alert man of sixty years, trimly gray as to hair, and moustache, sat idly watching him, yet with eyes that looked so innocently that they seemed to listen.

For fully five minutes the two men had been pulling at their cigars in silence when the millionaire spoke.

"Ned, what am I going to do with my money?"

Into the lawyer's listening eyes flashed, for a moment, the keenly scrutinizing glance usually reserved for the witness on the other side. Then quietly came the answer.

"Spend it yourself, I hope—for some years to come, Stanley."

Mr. Stanley G. Fulton was guilty of a shrug and an upturned eyebrow.

"Thanks. Very pretty, and I appreciate it, of course. But I can't wear but one suit of clothes at a time, nor eat but one dinner—which, by the way, just now consists of somebody's health biscuit and hot water. Twenty millions don't really what you might call melt away at that rate."

The lawyer frowned.

"Shucks, Fulton!" he expostulated, with an irritable twist of his hand. "I thought better of you than that. This poor rich man's one-suit, one-dinner, one-bed-at-a-time hard-luck story doesn't suit your style. Better cut it out!"

"All right. Cut it in." The man smiled good-humoredly. "But you see I was nettled when you didn't get me at all. I asked you what was to become of my money after I'd done spending it myself—the little that is left, of course."

Once more the lawyer's eyes flashed that keenly scrutinizing glance.

"What was it, Ned? A midnight rabbit, or a fudge of mine, or not like mother used to make? Why, man alive, you're barely over fifty, yet, Chester, it's only a little matter of indigestion. There are a lot of good, good and good dinners coming to you, yet."

The millionaire made wry face.

"Very likely—if I survive the biscuits. But, seriously, Ned, I'm in earnest. No, I don't think I'm going to die—yet awhile. But I ran across young Bixby last night—got him home, in fact. Delivered him to his white-faced little wife. Talk about your maidin' idiots!"

"Yes, I know. Too bad, too bad!"

"Him, well, that's what you might call inherited. It, set me to thinking—of mine, when I get through with them."

"I see." The lawyer's lips came together a little grimly. "You've not made your will, I believe."

"No. Dreaded it, somehow. Funny how a man'll fight shy of a little thing like that, isn't it? And when we're so mighty particular where it goes while we're living!"

"Yes, I know; you're not the only one. You have relatives—some where, I surmise."

"Nothing nearer than cousins, third or fourth, back East. They'd get it, I suppose—without a will."

"Why don't you marry?"

The millionaire repeated the wry face of a moment before.

"I'm not a marrying man. I never did care much for women; and I'm not fool enough to think that a woman would be apt to fall in love with my bad head. Nor am I obliging enough to care to hand the millions over to the woman that falls in love with them, taking me along as the necessary sack that holds the gold. If it comes to that, I'd rather risk the cousins. They, at least, are of my own blood, and they didn't angle to get the money."

"You know them?"

"Never saw 'em."

"Why not pick out a bunch of colleges and endow them?"

The millionaire shook his head.

"Doesn't appeal to me, somehow. Oh, of course it ought to, but it just doesn't. That's all. Maybe it's a college man myself; but—well, I had to dig for what education I got."

"Very well—charities, then. There are numberless organizations that—

He stopped abruptly at the other's uplifted hand.

"Organizations! Good Heavens, I should think there were! I tried 'em once. I got that philanthropic bee in my bonnet, and I gave thousands, tens of thousands to 'em. Then I got to wondering where the money went."

Unexpectedly the lawyer chuckled.

"You never did like to invest without investigating, Fulton," he observed.

With only a shrug for an answer the other plunged on.

"Now, understand. I'm not saying that organized charity isn't all right, and doesn't do good, of course. Neither am I prepared to propose anything to take its place. And may be the two or three I dealt with were seriously addicted to the sort of thing I objected to. But, honestly, Ned, if you'd lost heart and friends eyed little women sternly told me up and down the whole shooting-match, how would you like to become a 'Case,' say, number twenty-three thousand, seven hundred and forty-one, ticketed and doctored, and duly apportioned out to a six-by-nine rule of 'do this' and 'do that,' while a dozen spectacled eyes watched you being cleaned up and regulated and wound up for a key made of just so much and no more parts, and the elements that weighed and labeled? How would you like it?"

The lawyer laughed.

"I know, but my dear fellow, what would you have? Surely, unorganized charity and promiscuous giving is worse."

"Oh, yes, I've tried that way, too," shrugged the other. "There was a time when every Tom, Dick, and Harry, with a run-down shoe and a ragged coat, could count on me for a ten-spot by just holding out his hand, no questions asked. Then a serious-eyed little woman sternly told me up and down the whole shooting-match, how would you like to become a 'Case,' say, number twenty-three thousand, seven hundred and forty-one, ticketed and doctored, and duly apportioned out to a six-by-nine rule of 'do this' and 'do that,' while a dozen spectacled eyes watched you being cleaned up and regulated and wound up for a key made of just so much and no more parts, and the elements that weighed and labeled? sider my efforts to circulate it wisely, or even harshly, exactly as what you'd call a howling success. What ever I've done, I've always been criticized for not doing something else. If I gave a costly entertainment, I was accused of showy ostentation. If I didn't give it, I was accused of not putting money into honest circulation. If I donated to a church, it was called conscience money; and if I didn't donate to it, they said I was mean and miserly. So much for what I've done. I was just wondering—what the other fellow'd do with it."

"Why worry? 'T won't be your fault."

"But it will—if I give it to him. Great Scott, Ned! Think what money does for folks, sometimes—folks that aren't used to it! Look at Bixby; and look at that poor little Marston girl, throwing herself away on the worthless scamp of a Gowing who's only after her money, as everybody (but herself) knows. And if it doesn't make sense, and it doesn't of them, ten to one it does make fools of 'em. They're worse than a kid with a dollar on circus day; and they use just about as much sense spending their pile, too. You should have heard that tell about his pals in the car store in the city. They were thousands in the dice box before it was a week old. I wonder what those cousins of mine back East are like!"

"If you're fearful, better take Case number twenty-three thousand seven hundred and forty-one," smiled the lawyer.

"Him—! I suppose so," ejaculated the other grimly, getting to his feet. "Well, I must be off. It's biscuit time, I see."

A moment later the door of the lawyer's sumptuously appointed office closed behind him. Not twenty-four hours afterward, however, it opened to admit him again. He was alert, eager-eyed and smiling. He looked ten years younger. Even the office boy who ushered him in cocked a curious eye at him.

The man at the great flat-topped desk gave a surprised exclamation.

"Hello, Fulton! Those biscuits must be agreeing with you," he laughed. "Mind telling me their name?"

"Ved, I've got a scheme, I think I can carry it out," Mr. Stanley G. Fulton strode across the room and dropped himself into the waiting chair.

"Back East? Well, I'm going to find out which of 'em I want for my heir."

"Another case of investigating before investing, eh?"

"Exactly."

"Well, that's like you. What is it, a little detective work? Going to get acquainted with them, I suppose, and see how they treat you. Then you can size them up as to hearts and habits, and drop the golden plum into the lap of the worthy man, eh?"

"Yes, and no. But not the way you say. I'm going to give 'em say a hundred thousand apiece, and—"

"Give it to them—now?"

"Sure! How in I'm going to know how they'll spend money till they have it to spend?"

"I know, but—"

"Oh, I've planned all that. Don't worry. Of course you'll have to fix it up for me. I shall leave instructions with you, and when the time comes all you have to do is to carry them out."

The lawyer came erect in his chair. "Leave instructions! But you, yourself—"

"Oh, I'm going to be there, in Hillerton."

"Where? Hillerton?"

"Yes, where the cousins live, you know. Of course I want to see how it works."

"Humph! I suppose you think you'll find out—with you watching their every move!" The lawyer had settled back in his chair, an ironical smile on his lips.

"Oh, they won't know me, of course, except as John Smith."

"John Smith? The lawyer was sitting erect again."

"Yes. I'm going to take that name—for a time."

"Nonsense, Fulton! Have you lost your senses?"

All the World's a School.

Great Similarity Between School Life and Community Life.

In some manner the school may be considered as not greatly different from the community in which group-ups hold sway. In his school-group the pupil plays somewhat the same part that he will eventually be asked to play in the larger community outside the school. Whenever he refrains from an act which, if it were committed, would make difficult the carrying on of the work of the school he is of help to his fellow-citizen in school; and whenever in a more constructive manner he does something which will make the work of the school more effective, he has qualified in the capacity in which he will be known later as a public-spirited citizen.—Detroit News.

Do Not Require Passports As a Condition of Entry From U.S. to Canada.

The Canadian Pacific Railway announce they have received the following notice which has been recently issued by the Department of Immigration and Colonization, which will be of special interest to tourists travelling between the United States and Canada:

"Canada welcomes bona fide tourists and will extend every courtesy possible to such travellers in entering and leaving the Dominion. Tourists do not require passports as a condition of entry to Canada from the United States or as a condition of leaving Canada for the United States."

Immigrants (i.e., persons coming to Canada to work or reside) are debarred if nationals of Germany, Austria, Hungary, Bulgaria or Turkey, but nationals of any of the countries mentioned are not debarred when belonging to a non-immigrant class such as tourists and travellers."

Compressed Wheat.

An odd suggestion comes from England as to conserving wheat. It is proposed to crush or rough grind wheat, then soften with superheated steam and compress in hard blocks and store until wanted, when the simple crushing process would fit it for flour manufacture.—Scientific American.

Children Cry for Fletcher's CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. The "Sacred Way." In memory of obscure soldiers of all nations and races who died in the Great War in defence of right and liberty, a memorial is proposed, a roadway in France, to be known as "The Sacred Way." "The Sacred Way" is a long and picturesque route, starting at Bar-le-Duc and ending at Verdun. This way is regarded as the route that gave victory, the only one which remained free and by which the Verdun front was kept supplied with food, guns and munitions.

Origins Of Toasts. Originally, when the ancient Greeks or Romans were at a feast, the custom was to bow before the statue of Bacchus, the god of wine, exclaiming, "Be propitious, O Bacchus!" and pour a little wine on the ground. This was also done to other gods. Emperors being deified, this honor was paid to them. Then wealthy people and beautiful women were thus toasted, and the habit of toasting was established and later people desired to drink the liquor instead of wasting it.

You Can Prevent 40 % Annual Depreciation in Your Car, Truck or Tractor

by using a lubricant that will stop friction which is the great foe to gear life. Go into any repair shop and see the number of cars being overhauled because some owners think that all lubricants are equally good. Repair men will tell you that half of their business results from imperfect lubrication.

Whitmore's Gear Compositions are not affected by changes of temperature. They are actively fluid in the colder weather, and in extreme heat and at high speeds they constantly preserve an indestructible film on the bearings, preventing contact of metal to metal.

WHITMORE'S do not evaporate under extreme heat, the level is not reduced. Run it through a strainer and put it back in your car, truck or tractor. You can use it over and over again. One installation will last eighteen to twenty-four months where there is no leakage. Considered on a mileage basis no lubricant is so economical as Whitmore's.

OTHER LUBRICANTS MAY COST LESS PER POUND—THEY COST MORE PER MILE. Don't ask for a grease—ask for Whitmore's Auto Gear Protective Composition, manufactured by The Whitmore Manufacturing Co., Cleveland, Ohio.
